- 1. At the beginning of 1949 an office of the Sinklang Rare Metals Development Company was set up near the post office in Urunchi under the joint management of the Soviet Union and the Sinklang government, which had just come into power at Ining (81-17, 43-55). In February 1950 the company was reorganized under joint Chinese-Soviet nanagement in accordance with the Sinkiang Development Agreement between Stalin and MAO Too-tung. The head of this company was Tylor, aged 53, who was assisted by 100 Soviet engineers.
- 2. A large scale atomic power research organization was set up at Sui Mu Kou (水度温) in the northeast suburbs of Urumchi, where over 70 atomic experts from Germany, Poland, Czechowkia, and the Soviet Union ongaged in research. The restricted area in which they work is guarded by a unit of Soviet cavalry, The Chinese Communist government furnishes labor, land, and buildings for the project, while the Soviet Union excercises physical control over the area.
- 3. During 1950 six groups of from 20 to 30 experts were sent from Drumold to various parts of Sinking for exploration rusposes. Out of four groups sent to the Tiden Shan and Altei Mountains, one discovered a deposit of cre and Mount Saudienkio (其译格)。
- 4. An area 70 miles north of the Fou Klang ( Fig. ) district of Chita has been made into an atomic industrial center by the Soviets. A large airfield and extensive radar system were installed. The area is guarded by one division of Soviet cavalry. Mining is done at the base of Mount Tien ( A ), where a light reilroad has been set up to transport the ores to a large-scale plant which refines the ores. The erea is supplied from the airfield, About 14,000 laborers are employed, among thom are conscriptees from North China, Contral Asia, and former Nationalist soldiers. Because the workers ere treated badly, some desert.
